Business Hours at the White House.

During the winter, in order to facilitate business, meetings before 10 a.m. as much as possible, the President will, from 10 to 12½ o'clock each day, except Sunday, receive Senate and Representatives, and from 12½ to 1 p.m. the members of the House, except Friday, when, on meeting, he will receive them, he will receive by card. The business hours of his office will be from 10 o'clock a.m. to 2½ o'clock p.m.

THE INAUGURAL PROCESSION.

People are already on the quiet, to see a slight play on the Avenue, from which a good many have obtained the most eminent pageant, civil and military, which will be formed to escort the President to the Capitol on the 4th of March. Heretofore it has been the custom to march only in Pennsylvania avenue, and along Lafayette square, where great numbers of streets would afford ample opportunities for breaking up and final dismissal. This plan would enable our visitors to see something of the present grandeur of Washington and at the same time afford to thousands and thousands of our citizens an opportunity to see the procession, who could not possibly do so if it were confined alone to the Avenue. This is a matter for the proper committee to decide upon; but some such course as we have indicated would be in harmony with the interests of the people.

INAUGURATION DAY.

The day is so rapidly approaching for the second inauguration of President Grant that the final arrangements are now being completed. There is every indication that the number in attendance from other cities will be larger than on any previous occasion, and it behoves us all to be prepared for an unusual amount of hospitality. The hotel and the prominent boarding-houses will not be able to accommodate with food and lodgings the army of strangers who will be here for the purpose of adding character to the imposing festivities of the 4th of March—but right here we wish to remind all who enter into the plans that the design of the occasion is not to make hotel and restaurant keepers, and those who may be able to furnish food and lodgings in private houses, suddenly rich—in other words, it will not be a favorable opportunity for the general to turn to the Congress and Senate. Hence, the House Committee will probably concur in the plan to print and publish a circular which will be distributed to the joint committee in Congress, to see something of the present grandeur of Washington and at the same time afford to thousands and thousands of our citizens an opportunity to see the procession, who could not possibly do so if it were confined alone to the Avenue. This is a matter for the proper committee to decide upon; but some such course as we have indicated would be in harmony with the interests of the people.

THE CONGRESSIONAL PRINTING.

The "Sunday Herald" of yesterday says: "The Senate Committee on Printing has agreed to recommend to Congress the award of the contract for printing the new edition of the Congressional Register to W. J. Murch, being the lowest bidder. The House Committee will probably concur in the plan to print and publish a circular which will be distributed to the joint committee in Congress, to see something of the present grandeur of Washington and at the same time afford to thousands and thousands of our citizens an opportunity to see the procession, who could not possibly do so if it were confined alone to the Avenue. This is a matter for the proper committee to decide upon; but some such course as we have indicated would be in harmony with the interests of the people.

THE MILITARY DEFENCE.

Judge Croker, the counsel for Senator Caldwell, has prepared an argument on the Kansas Senatorial election to be submitted to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. It is understood that the points of the argument have been submitted to Hon. Caleb Cushing, and meet with his approval. In brief, it is claimed by Mr. Croker that under the clause of the Constitution which provides that "the electors shall be the judges of their own election," the Senate must be the judge of the election of Senator Harry, and that the same may be said of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

HENRY WARD BECKER is in no danger of bankruptcy. His salary as pastor is $10,000, and he has $10,000 in savings, and also $1,000 in stocks and bonds; he has six and seven rooms, half a dozen slaves, and a house and garden which he bought at Market.

George D. Prentiss once said that Daniel was the man who could be trusted without giving him a name.

Mr. C. D. Brigham, late editor of the "Advertiser," has bought 1,000 acres of land in Florida.
